The screenshot shows the top navigation bar of the JMP website. On the left is the JMP logo with the tagline "Statistical Discovery™ From SAS." To the right of the logo are links for "Software", "JMP in Action", "Events", "Learn JMP", "Community", "JMP Public", "Support", and "About Us". Further right are links for "Welcome Tim", "Edit Profile", "Log Out", and "Worldwide Sites". A search bar is located to the right of these links. Below the navigation bar are two orange buttons: "Try JMP" and "Buy JMP".

The main content area has a blue background with a bokeh effect. The title "Statistical Thinking for Industrial Problem Solving" is displayed in white, followed by the subtitle "A free online course". Below this is a paragraph of text: "In virtually every field, deriving insights from data is central to problem solving, innovation and growth. But without an understanding of which approaches to use, and how to interpret and communicate results, the best opportunities will remain undiscovered." This is followed by another paragraph: "That's why we created Statistical Thinking for Industrial Problem Solving. This online course is available - for free - to anyone interested in building practical skills in using data to solve problems better." Below the text is an orange "Enroll now" button. To the right of the text is a photograph of three people looking at a computer screen. Below the photo is the text "Have two minutes? Learn more."
